STANFORD

Of California Lorming Up as the Possible Republican "Man of Destiny" in 1888-

His Little Boomlet Being Worked by West of the Saratoga (N. Y.) District.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE APPRAL.] Washington, January 26.—Presidential boomlets are already being sprouted in anticipation of the contes to come in 1888. One of the notice able features is that a great many peo-ple are looking toward the setting suo for a "man of destiny."

"The next Republican candidate for President will be a Western man," said Representative West of the Saratoga (N. Y.) district, to-day. "Mr. Biaine was my choice in 1884," continued the Representative, "but it will not do to nominate him sgain." "What Western man do you think can carry the country on the Republican ticket?" was asked. "There are several who would run well," replied the Representative eva-sively. "Legan is a good man. Ingalls also would make a strong candi-

"How about Senstor Leland Stan-ford of California?" inquired your cor-respondent, and then Representative

West began to warm up.
"Stanford would be a strong man," he remarked. "Nothing can be said against him. He is a very bopular man in his own State, and was elected to the Senate practically without op-position. I know it is said that Stauford has not a national reputation, but in reality he has far more national reputation than some others who have been elected to the Presidency; and he commands the respect and confi-dence of all who know him."
"Would not the fact that he is a

"I do not think so," replied Representative West. "His popularity in his own State, where Denis Kearney and the sand-lot element have held easy sway, proves that Senator Stanford has not antagonized the poor class s. Though he is a man of great wealth, he has used his monetary power for worthy objects."

"Senator Stanford was born in Al-bany county, N. Y, in 1824, and lived there till he was twenty-five years of ege. Then he went to Wisconsin and practiced law till 1852, when he moved to California. He was Governor co that State from 1861 to 1863. He has made an immense fortune in railroad operations, and has recently set aside $20,000,000 to found a university in California. Leland Stanford often visits his old home in eastern New York. His brother, lately deceased, owned a large and valuable estate in Schenectady county, near Albany, and was an influential man in Republican State accompanying, to belong to a lioness which played the executioner's part in a lover's revenge. The other poems are by Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, the late Sidney Lanier, and others.

"Antoine Louis Barre," the French sculptor, is the subject of the opening illustrated article in the February Century. It is by Henry Eckford, who gives a thoughtful study of the man and his art, as well as anecdote and information, George W. Cable con-tributes a paper on "The Dance in Place Congo," which is illustrated with several arrangements of Creole music by H. E. Krehbiel, Miss M. L. Bartlett and John A. Broekoven, and with striking sketches by E. W. Kemble. "City Dwellings," attractively illustrated, is the subject of Mrs. Van Rensselaer's fifth paper on "Recent American Architecture."

THE CENTURY for February contains Gen. Grant's article, written before his death, "Preparing for the Wilderness Campaign." Here he is dealing with his plans for the last grand campaign, extending from the James round to Nashville, Atlanta and the sea, and which gave the Con-federacy the death hug. His method is vivid and anecdotal, and as outspoken regarding the personal aids and drawbacks of his officers as the physical difficulties to be overcome. A fac-simile of Lincoln's "God-speed" letter to Grant, written a few days be-fore the Wilderness battle, accompanies the article; also a characteristic aneceote of Grant during the bat-tle by Charles Carleton Coffin, who observed the incident described.

Is The Gentury for February will be found an article entitled "Anecdotes of McClellan's Bravery" by one of his officers who was a companion in arms as far back as the Mexican war, which lends additional interest to the wartime portrait of McClellan, which is the frontispiece of the number. Unthe frontispiece of the number. Under the laconic title, "Our March Against Pope," Gen. Longstreet gives the Confederate view of the second Bull Run campaign, with some caustic criticisms and amusing anecdotes. Though not written with a knowledge of Gen. Pope's article in the preceding number, it derives from that a certain interest which in another sense it returns. The paper is profusely illustrated, as is also "With Jackson's Foot-Cavalry at the Second Manassas," by Allen C. Redwood, who describes the humors and hardships of a private. In "Memoranda of the Civil War" Gen. William F. Smith and others offer "Comments on General Grant's 'Chattanooga'" and Gen. Erasmus D. Keyes describes the services of "The Rear-Guard After Malvern Hill."

THE ST. NICHOLAS for February is a "bang up" number that the little ones are sure to enjoy hugely. Appropriate to the month is the second installment of Horace E. Scudder's "George Washington;" and the comparison between the governments of England and Amer-ica, in "Among the Law-makers," will interest all patriotic boys and girls. Of a somewhat more practical nature is the "Ready for Business" paper on electrical engineering; while Helen Jackson (H. H.) gives a few useful hints in her "New Bits of Talk for Young Folks;" and Frank Bellew, in Young Folks;" and Frank Bellew, in a clever little story, explains how the brain receives, stores, and uses all its impressions. Among those articles which may be classed as timely is an outdoor sketch, entitled "Fish-spearing Through the Ice," which shows how clever boys improved on an ingenious Indian mode of fishing; "Badminton," a sort of indoor tennis for wintry days, is the subject of a paper by C. L. Norton; Sophie Swett has an amusing "coasting" story, called 'The Girl Who Loet Her Pocket;" and there are bright Valentine verses by Elizabeth Commings, and others. Mrs.Bur-nett continues her entertaining story of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and tells how he returned to the home of his ancestors; Frank R. Stockton "Per-sonally Conducts" united to the consonally Conducts' us into many queen places "Around the Bay of Naples;" E. S. Brooks contributes a two-part "Comedy for Children;" W. Cary tells of the exciting adventure of two boys, a dog and a wild cat; and there is a great deal else that is good including some verses by Dora Read Goodale, Bessie Chandler, and others.

THE POPULAR SCIENCE MONTHLY for

F-bruary offers an unusually attractive group of papers of merit on topics of current interest and real importance. At their head stands an account of "The I uprovement of East River and Hell Gate," by Gen. John Newton, the originator of the plan and director of the works. The article is accom-panied with new maps and illustra-In "The Interpreters of Genesis and the Interpreters of Nature" are given Prof. Huxley's criticisms of an article by Mr. Gladstone on the "Dawn of Creation and Worship." Mr. Henry James Ten Eyck has an important essay, of home and personal interest to every reader, on "Recent Experiments in State Taxation." In Bishop's Ring Around the Sun" Mr. William M. Davis describes a curious solar coronal phenomenon which ap-pears to be a legacy left by the "red sunsets." Mr. Chauncev Smith's "Influence of Inventions Upon Civiliza-tion" has an interest in which every one's experience makes him a par ticipant. Mr. John McElroy's "The Musket as a Social Force" is an eminently readable account of important social and political phenomena. "Disimination in Railway Rates" th ughtfully and competently treated, with apparent impartiality, by Mr. Garrit L. Lansing. An interesting zd. d ess on "Acclimatization," by Prof. Rudolph Virchow, is published. Dr. F. L. Oswald shows how instinct may be regarded "As a Guide to Health." With a few shorter articles and papers of a more miscellaneous character, are given two biographical sketches, with millionaire weigh heavily against secompanying portraits, the subjects being Dr. William B. Carpenter, the famous English physiologist who recently died, and James B. Eads, the constructor of the St. Louis bridge. The editor discusses standards of truth, under the title of "Beecher's Position on Evolution."

"BOB" TOOMBS

As an Insubordina e Brigade Commander-Gen. Longstreet's Estimate of Him.

In Gep. Langstreet's account of "His March against Pope," in The Century War Series, in the February number. occurs the following: "Gen. Toombs, Georgia fire-eater, was given to criticising pretty severely all the offi-cers of the regular army who had joined their fortunes with those of the Confederacy. He was hot-blooded and impatient, and chafed at the delays of the commanders in their preparations for battle. His general idea was that the troops went out to fight, and he thought they should be allowed to go at it at once. An incident that ocpaign will serve to illustrate his characteristic hot-headedness. As we were preparing to cross the Rapidan, Stuart sent me word that he had cut off a large cavairs force and had all the fords guarded except one. He asked EDMUND C. STEDMAN contributes a notable poem, "Hebe," in the February number of the Century, which name is seen, from the illustrations of escape. The work was assigned to the command under Gen. Toombs, who was absent at the time. He had met a kindred spirit in the person of a wealthy Virginian named Morton, whom he had known in Chicago, and was out dining with him. They were both good livers and loved to have their friends with them. In going back to his command Gen. Toombs came upon his troops in the road and inquired what they were doing there. The explanation was made. Toombs had had a good dinner and felt independent. He said he would give the general to understand that he must consult him before sending his troops out to guard a ford, and thereupon ordered them back to camp. As the mystified troops marched solemnly back, the matter was reported to me and I ordered Toombs under arrest. I al o ved him to ride with his command as we marched against Pope and expected that he would make some explanation of his conduct. He did not do so, and the next I heard of him he was stopping along the route making stump speeches to the troops and referring in anything but complimentary term to the commander of his division. I sent him back to Gordonsville with instructions to con-fine himself to the limits of that town in arrest until further orders. He obeyed the command and went to Gordonsville. Just as I was leaving the Rappahaunock I received a long letter of spology from him, and directed him to join his command. As we were preparing for the charge at Manassas, Toombs got there. He was riding rapidly, with his hat in his hand, and was much enthused. I was just sending a courier to his command with a dispatch.

"'Let me carry it!' he exclaimed.

"'With pleasure,' I responded, and handed him the paper.

"He put spurs to his horse and dashed off, accompanied by a courier. When he rode up and took command of his brigade there was wild enthusi-asm, and everything being ready, an exultant shout was sent up, and the men sprang to the charge. I never had any more trouble with Toombs. We were ever afterward warm personal friends."

Another Victim of the Deadly Hog. CLEVELAND, PA., January 27.—Frank Grekkonek of 17 Vergenes street, Monday morning ate a small piece of raw pork, which he had purchased on the market a few days before. This morning he was seriously ill, and the physician who was called to attend him reports to the Health Office that Grekkonek is suffering from trichinosis. The pork which he bought had all consumed when the physician was called.

A Woman Murdered by Her Husband and His Paramour at Griffin, Ga.

Intense Excitement Over the Tragedy, Which May Result in a Lynching.

NEW YORK, January 27 .- A specia from Griffio, Ga., says: About a month ago George Daniel, accompanied by a woman passing as his wife, went to Mr. Bob Freeman's, three miles above town, and rented a house. Nothing occurred to ripple the even tenor of their way until last Saturday, when another woman appeared at Freeman's house and asked il Ceorge Daniel lived about there. She was directed to his place. Before leaving, however, she said that she was George Daniel's wife and had come to look for him. She went down to where George lived. Nothing was thought of the occurrence by Mr. Freeman or his family, and they went to bed that night little dreaming that an awful tragedy was being enacted within half a mile of their home. Sunday morning all was quiet at Daniel's house. Mr. Freeman went down to where the woman lived and found the door ke'red, the curtains down, and no signs of life. He broke open the door and

A GHASTLY SIGHT met his gaza: the deserted wife lying a corpse on the floor, and in her thigh her death wound from a gun was gaping, and the gan lay broken and shattered on the floor. George Daniel and his paramour were gone. The news spread like wildfi e, and soon a crowd was collected around the little but. Later in the day George Daniel and some relatives of the dead woman came to the house. George had gone eight or ten miles from his home and told them of the death, and they came back with him. George then told a remarkable tale. He said the dead woman was his wife and came to his house Saturday afternoon and begin abusing him for deserting her. They had a long wrangle over the matter, when finally she took the gun and threatened to shoot him. He caught hold of the gun to try to prevent her, when the gun fell to the floor, breaking in pieces and shooting the wom n in the thigh. The paramour turned out to be the wife of Daniel's brother. Intense excitement prevails, which may result in Daniel's lynching if he

Evidence Brought out in the Trial of Steagall, at Henrietta.

HENRIETTA, Tex., January 27.—The preliminary trial of A. A. Steagall of Clay county, charged with living in adultery with his daughter, who died after giving birth to a child a few days ago, come off yesterday. The evidence against Steagall showed that he lived in adultery with his daughter five years; that he was the father of the babe, and that he killed the child by breaking its neck. It was shown that he had administered all the medicine taken by his daughter, from which it was inferred that he poisoned her. Bail was refused the prisoner. During the trial the crowd brought a rope into the court-room for the purpose of LYNCHING STEAGALL.

The crowd was kept quiet until after the trial, when the officers started with the prisoner for the jail. One of the crowd carried a rope with a loop in one end, and as soon as the defendant stepped out of the court-room door, an effort was made to lynch him, but the ropeman was caught, and Steagall, seeing the intention, ran to the jail, begging for entrance, which was quickly given by an officer who chanced to be there. The officers turned, brandishing their pistols in the faces of the mob, threatening to kill the first man who pursued the prisoner. The crowd finally dispersed, but public feeling is so intense that it is thought another attempt at lynching will be made soon.

SNO W-SLIDES IN COLORADO. Information Relative to the Damage at Silverton and Other Points.

DENVER, Colo., January 27 .- After nine days of isolation telegraphic com-munication has been opened to Silvertor, and some information relative to the damage from the snow-slides in that vicinity has been received. Railway communication with this point is prevented by enormous slides in the upper part of the Animas canon. Sides have occurred where they were least expected, and much damage has been done at the various mines. ore-house at the Legal Tender tunnel was crushed Monday, and two men narrowly escaped. The boarding-house and other buildings at the Copper King mine, on Red mountain, were demolished. Tuesday of last week the boarding-house at the steammill of the Sampson mine was awept away by a slide, but the inmates mi-racuously escaped. The ore-house at the Mountain Esgle and all the buildings at the Mineral King mines are wrecked. The Montesuma tunnel-house and the buildings at the Jennie Parker mine, on Sultan mountain, were wrecked by a slide Wednesday. There is much suffering for food among the horses and pack animals, and starvation is imminent unless supplies can be conveyed there soon.

An Entire Family Frozen to Death MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo., January 27. -Some time last year John C. Kimbrell, a farmer living near this place, moved, with his family consisting of a wife and three childrer, to Kansas, taking up a claim near Dodge City. During the present blizzard which prevailed in that section of the country, Kimbrell and his family were at Dodge City. They started home be-fore the blizzard had spent its force, traveling in a covered wagon. They were not heard of fer some time, until a searching party found the entire family frezen to death in the wagon.

Hanged by a Mob.

Susanville, Cal., January 27.— Holden Dick and Vincente Olius, the former an Indian and the latter a Mexican, both convicted murderers, were taken out of jail last night and hanged to the beams of the woodshed of the court-house yard by a mob.

The Right of Ball in Polygamy Cases.

SALT LAKE, UTAH, January 27.—
Gov. Murray to-day returned to his Territorial Legislature with his veto the bill which that body had passed giving absolute right of bail pending appeals to all convicts excepting in cases of murray in the first decrease. cases of murder in the first degree. The Governor says the present law has been adjudicated in the United States Supreme Court and been suttained. It has been wisely applied in the discretion of the courts, which discretion the proposed measure would take away altogether. Since the beginning of the enforcement of the Edmunds law Judge Zane has generally refused bail to all persons con-victed of unlawful cohabitation and polygamy pending appeal, and in this he has been sustained by the Supreme Court. The object of the vetoed bill was to break this way of dealing with Morm:n convicts, who always appeal and would thereby often escape pun-ishment or delay the evil day to an indeficite fature.

FITZ JOHN PORTER,

As Gen, Lougstreet Measured Him

from Gen. Longstreet's paper on the "March Against Pope;" "Gen. Pope, sanguine by nature, was not careful enough to keep himself informed about the movements of his enemy. At 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the 29th he issued an order for Porter to attack Jackson's right, supposing I was at Thoroughfare Gap, when, in fact, I had been in position since noon, and was anxicusly awaiting attack. It has been said that Gen. Stuart, by raising a dust in front of Porter, so im-pressed him that he did not offer bat-tle. I know nothing of the truth of the story, and never heard of it till after the war. If from any such cause Porter was prevented from attacking me it was to our disadvantage, and delayed our victory twenty-four hours Porter knew I was in his front. He had captured one or two of my men, which gave him information of my position before he actually saw me. If Porter had not appeared when he did I would have attacked by our right early in the afternoon. In that event Porter would have had a fine opportunity to take me on the wing and strike a fearful blow. As it was, he was a check upon my move against Pope's main position. If I had advanced upon Pope I would have been under an enfillade fire from Porter's batteries, and if I had advanced upon Porter I would have been under a fire from the tatteries on Pope's front as severe as the raking fire from my batteries the next day, when Pope was massed against Jackson. Had Porter attacked me between noon and night on the 29th, I should have received his 9000 with about double that number. I would have held my line to receive the attack, and as soon as his line developed its strength, I would have thrown three brigades forward beyond his extreme left. When my line of battle had broken up the at-tack, as it certainly would have done, these three brigades would have been thrown forward at the flank, and at the same time my main line would have pashed on in pursuit. The result would have been Porter's retreat in confusion, and l might pess by h.ve reached Pope's left and rear in time to cut off. When his army was well concentrated on the 30th he was badly cut up and defeat-ed. It does not seem unreasonable to conclude that attack on the 20th in his disjointed condition would have been attended with more disastrous esults to him. If I had been attacked under the 4:30 order, the results might have been less da aging, as Porter would have had the night to cover his retrest, and the Federal army could have availed itself of the darkness to screen its move back across Bull Run. But Porter's attack at night, if not followed by the retreat of the army, would I ave drawn me around the
